Faced with calamities that carry far-reaching public health impacts, nations have benefited from the school's expertise.

Michael C. Lu: Redefining Maternal and Child Health

10 The U.S. ranks near the bottom among developed countries on many measures, and racial/ethnic disparities in pregnancy outcomes persist. The obstetrician/gynecologist and public health researcher promotes a broader agenda.

12 Health Hazards in Economic Hard Times

12 Lost health insurance. Rising rates of depression and stress. Poor diets. Increased violence and abuse. Growing strain on free clinics. The potential fallout from a downturn is a major challenge for public health.

GOING GLOBAL: Newest Faculty Recruits Enhance School's Overseas Presence

18 A strategic goal of enhancing the global health program has gained momentum with five additions in less than two years. A new global health certificate program attracts students.
