4 After KATRINA: Disaster Response, Displaced Students, What We Learned

The tragedy of Hurricane Katrina sent several faculty and students to the Gulf Coast region to assist and brought displaced public health students to UCLA.

8 Lessons Beyond the Classroom: Students Gain Experience Through Practicum Requirement

Michael Prelip:
Helping
Students to Find Their Way

In running his department's Field Studies program, he guides students through the process of obtaining real-world public health experiences. But for this faculty member, mentorship means much more.

Worldly Pursuits: School's Global Health Program Transcends Borders

One country's problems are the world's. International initiatives, a central part of the UCLA SPH Strategic Plan, recognize the interconnectedness of nations and the need for cooperative actions to address health concerns.

FAMILY VALUES: The Fred H. Bixby Center for Population and Reproductive Health

The Fred H. Bixby Program has fostered overseas internships for students, supported research, and promoted key public health issues. A new gift will enhance the effort, creating a newly endowed center.
